RESPONDING TO MALICE

When bitterness begins to speak
Of people that I know,
I turn away and gently say:
I have not found them so.

When every life is angry head
To snarl at friends and mine
I never let myself forget
That I have found them fine.

I won't believe a man is base
Or false, who ever he be,
Until the day that I may say
That he's been false to me.

—Wear A. Guest in the Detroit Free Press.

THE NEED IS GENUINE

REGULARLY the state of Idaho, with one half the population of Oregon has been spending twice as much money as Oregon does on normal training. The state of Washington has been regularly spending about five times the sum that Oregon expends for this purpose. California has been spending and continues to spend 10 times as much as does Oregon for this purpose.

These statements are true and may be verified by anyone. They explain why there is complaint of a severe sort from the educators of the state. The facts explain why every teacher in Oregon is boosting for a normal school at Pendleton. They explain why the president of the Monmouth Normal is doing so himself. The facts explain why of the thousands of school teachers in Oregon only 13 per cent are normal graduates and thus properly equipped for the important work they do. They explain why there is frequent criticism of the standard of school work, particularly in rural districts.

"Money talks" in school affairs as well as elsewhere. Oregon cannot have proper educational facilities on a par with other states and refuse to spend more than one half or one tenth as much as those states devote to the purpose. Remember these facts, dear visitor, and when the time comes this fall give eastern Oregon a fair deal by voting for the measure to establish an eastern Oregon normal school at Pendleton.

THE GROUCH

THERE'S odds in temper as well as deacons. There are bad tempers and good tempers, and each may become the other with the shifts of circumstance or condition. Good temper may be a fault if it result from flabbiness of inertia of disposition, while bad temper, if directed against an evil or wrong, may be righteous indignation. Then it grows capable, like the thunderstorm, not only of clearing the atmosphere, but of destroying pestilential vapors.

There, however, exists another mental malady which originates in personal character and militates against one's own welfare no less than against the comfort of one's associates. It is grouchiness. This is a permanent pest and constantly causes social wretchedness. It ruins the owner's disposition and devastates the days of all around.

The grouch is unreasonable. It imagines that men are the enemies of its victim, and its Ishmael hand accordingly is against all men. Its root generally runs down into exaggerated and overweening selfhood. It has inadequate appreciation for the truth that beyond the mountains of self live other people and that they count for at least as much as the grouchy man. It centers upon self, and magnifies the molehills of one's little life into majestic mountains. It does not charge against iniquity or champion good causes. It is a worm in a nut, turning sweetness into dust and ashes.—Spokesman-Review.

THE INDEPENDENTS CONTROL

THE New York primary furnished a distinct test as to how the progressive vote in that state will divide and the result shows that 40 per cent or more will be for Wilson. It is such a percentage as to insure the reelection of the president, provided the New York vote is a fair index to the country's sentiment.

The big factor in the election, however, will be the independent vote—representing the element that refuses to hang close to any party, republican, democrat or bull moose. These people care but little for partisan affairs and vote their impressions or convictions. The circumstances are such that their support may be expected for Wilson this time.

WHAT ABOUT NICK SINNOTT?

WHEN the eight hour trainmen law was before congress 70 republican members of the lower house voted in favor of its passage. Those 70 men represented more than a majority of the republican members present and voting.

Therefore it is fair to assert that a large degree of responsibility for the enactment of that law rests upon republican shoulders.

In taking up the side of the railroad magnates by denunciation of the eight hour law in order to hit Wilson, Candidate Hughes has also struck a blow at congressmen of his own political faith. Two of the Oregon congressmen, including Mr. Sinnott, voted for the eight hour law.

According to Candidate Hughes President Wilson base-ly "yielded to force" and should not be reelected. Does he say the same thing of Nick Sinnott and the 69 other republican congressmen who voted with the president's friends?

28 Years Ago Today

(From the Daily East Oregonian, Sept. 20, 1888.)
Mills Andrews, who was so "fatal-ly" stabbed some time ago at Island City by a young man in his employ, is in town today and looks far from being a dead man.
Miss Anna Smith leaves on tonight's train for California, accompanied by Mrs. C. Johnson, Mrs. C. A. Minor and Miss Addie Johnson.
James Lucaville is in today from Adams. He reports the town not dead yet by any means.
James D. Slater and Miss Fannie B. Hayes were married at La Grande last Wednesday evening by Rev. W. H. Powell. The bridegroom is a son of ex-Senator Slater and brother of R. J. Slater of Pendleton.
The two horses of Jack Powers which fell sick on the same spot and in such a manner that their recovery was despaired of, are now nearly well. James Lambirth returned on last night's train from a visit to his old stamping ground at La Grande.
W. W. Caviness is in town today from Foster.
Mr. Perkins informs the East Oregonian that the Pendleton band under his management, will give a series of six concerts next winter, tickets to be 15 apiece, providing 100 can be sold. One half of the proceeds will go toward improving and beautifying the Pendleton park. The remainder will be used by the band.

(From the Daily East Oregonian, Sept. 21, 1888.)
The two lady composers of the East Oregonian, Misses Susie Fanning and Nellie Seaburg, are now enjoying a much needed respite from work.
The party consisting of L. C. Arnold, Tom Mowrey, G. L. Burzy, and Billy Williams, who went to survey the line between Umatilla and Grant Co., have returned, its members having concluded their duties.
Hupetta won another race at Balem Tuesday, one and one fourth she was handicapped 10 pounds.

The roads leading into town are in terrific condition, caused by continuous pouring of heavy loaded wagons, causing ruts in the dust up to the knee. Even inside the city limits on some of the streets thoroughfares are in a wretched fix.
Mr. and Mrs. M. Demmitt arrived in town last night from Vancouver, W. T.
Manager Kuehler propose to tackle with a vengeance if a club can be found from here to Jersey that will come to Pendleton and play ball, dates will be arranged at once.
When completed the fronts and side of Jagen's new hotel will present an unique appearance, but with all handsome and attractive.

FROM THE PEOPLE

RECRUITS ARE NEEDED.

National Guard Recruiting Station La Grande, Ore., Sept. 20, 1916.
Editor East Oregonian:
The undersigned, accompanied by Corporal Earl T. Baker, will arrive in Pendleton on Friday, September 22, and will open a recruiting station in the rooms of the Commercial Association, through the courtesy of the management. It is the purpose to enlist men for the national guard in the western department now being duty on the Mexican border. While the Third Oregon and Second Washington infantry have been returned home, Oregon still has a battery of field artillery and a troop of cavalry. Washington a troop of cavalry and a signal corps company; Idaho a regiment of infantry; Montana a battalion of infantry and a troop of cavalry; Utah a battery of field artillery, two squadrons of cavalry, a field hospital, California two regiments of infantry, a battalion of field artillery, a squadron of cavalry, an ambulance company and signal corps company.
There is plenty of opportunity in our country and the young men of the nation to do their "bit" for preparedness. Oregon has not given her quota and surely we cannot go on record as being deficient in patriotism—we are not—but the young men do not seem to realize that the president of the United States is calling them to do serious duty on the border, preparing themselves and the country to meet any emergency.
The recruiting office will be open for several days, closing September 28.
Please give us what publicity you can and oblige.
Yours sincerely,
LEE M. CLARK,
Captain O. N. G., Recruiting Officer.
